Three Tips to Protect Your Family

The highway presents your family with the biggest risk of disabling injury. The highway endangers your teenage son and daughter, and your mother and father. Despite all your effort to drive safely, serious crashes still happened. Here are important tips about how to protect your family financially:

1. Uninsured/Underinsured Motorist Insurance Coverage

Buy coverage of at least $100,000 per person; $300,000 per accident. If you can get even more coverage, get it. The AAA reports that 25% of all drivers have no insurance. So don't count on the other guy to have insurance to pay for your injuries.

2. Disability Insurance - Protect Your PayCheck

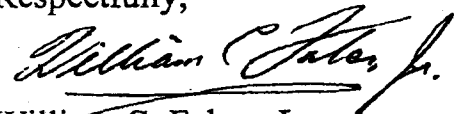

Statistics show that a working man or woman is much more likely to suffer a disability injury than die. Yet lots of folks buy life insurance, but not disability insurance. Disability insurance gives you a paycheck when your off work. Get it now.

3. Health Insurance - High Deductible

Often its too expensive for the guy whose employer does not provide it as a benefit. But you need it. Here's an idea: get a policy with a high deductible such as $10,000. At least you have limited your loss and won't have to go bankrupt.

I hope these tips help your family and friends. Thank you.
